BALFOUR HAS LOST WYNDHAM FROM CABINET

Chief Secretary for Ireland Is Forced Out by the Unionists of Ulster.

LONDON, March 6.—In the House of Commons Premier Balfour to-day announced the resignation of George Wyndham as Chief Secretary of Ireland. The resignation came as the result of the criticism of Mr. Wyndham on account of the assistance given the Dunraven devolution scheme by Mr. Anthony Macdonell, the "Under Secretary for Ireland," a member of the Unionists who attacked Mr. Wyndham because he needed in pressing him out of the Cabinet. Mr. Wyndham was regarded as one of the strongest men in the Cabinet, and it was felt that his retirement will greatly weaken the Balfour government.

RICHEST MAN IN BRIGHTON DIES

James Tirrell, a coal dealer, who was regarded to be the richest man in Brighton, dropped dead from heart disease at the Alleston station of the Boston & Albany Railroad while waiting for a train early today. Mr. Tirrell was ninety years old and lived at No. 157 Brighton avenue.

PTOMAINE POISONING KILLS WEBSTER BOY

WEBSTER, March 6.—William T. Laford, the fifteen-year-old son of William C. Laford, of North Main street, is dead from ptomaine poisoning.

Patrick Lonergan, Jr., is dying from the same cause.

Both boys were students at the Web-

NEW YORK, March 8.—Heads of thirty Greek families living at No. 8 Goerck street, where 120 children of all ages play about the hallways, are to appear in Essex Street Court to-day to complain of Landlord Elias Rume, whom they charge with forcing race suicide by raising the rent fifty cents every time a child is born to any of his tenants.

The tenants declare that Landlord Rume bores his rents on the number of children in the family, not by the desirability of the tenement, but their main grievance is the half-dollar jump on the rent every time a new baby comes, which is frequently.

Landlord Russ says his tenants are conspiring against him. He has long made a rule that he will admit no family having more than two children. He has found the

BISHOP M'DONNELL NOT TO COME HERE

NEW YORK, March 6.—The Rt. Rev. Charles E. McDonnell, Bishop of Brooklyn, who was a passenger on the Caronia, has denied the rumor that he was to go to Boston as co-conductor with the right of audience to Archbishop Williams. The Bishop has just returned from a visit to Rome.

SHOT BY MAN HE BEFRIENDED

Specimen to the Boston American.
FALL, RIVER, March 6.—Timothy Lamy, while stumbling along the sodomy road, was arrested by a policeman and trying to reach this city for medical assistance, was picked up by a milkman. He was brought here in the milk wagon and taken to the city hospital. The doctor told the officers he had been shot by his childmate.

Lamy lived in a cabin on the sodomy road and worked for Philander Mearns, a farmer. He said that a man came to his house recently and begged to be allowed to stay there a few days. He was admitted, and the men cooked their meal and put up a bed for him until he became ill.

At the supper table they quarreled. Lamy says that he ordered the man to get up and go, but he refused to get up, put in a spoon and shot his host before he could get up.

GREAT CARONIA REACHES PORT

Guardsmen, the Caronia took up a large part of the North river as she moved up stream from quarantine, and with the aid of a fleet of puffing tugs swung slowly into her appointed berth. It required eight tugs to get the enormous vessel into her slip.

STORM-TOSSED DEWEY IN PORT

After sailing with one of the three hurricanes of the Winter while off Cape Hatteras last Saturday, the belated steamer or Admiral Dewey limped into port today with forty-four returning tourists from Jamaica. Captain Purter says the gale was terrible and sent the steamer nearly a hundred miles from her course.

At 10 o'clock Wallace was struck by a heavy sea Saturday, which broke over its ship, and hurled to the deck with tremendous force, sustaining severe injuries to his left leg.

For two days the hurricane knocked the steamer on her course and tossed her incessantly. Passengers were in most cases confined to their staterooms during the last two days.

The steamer brought 28,000 bunches of bananas.

on the door to-day. Proprietor Edward J. Stacey, of the Stacey House at No. 1 Tremont street, forced an entrance and found lying dead on the bed John Mahony. Gas was escaping from the pipes. The man had removed all fixtures from the gas pipes and stuffed the cracks of the door. On the bureau in the room was a sealed letter addressed to Dennis Flynn, No. 10 Washington street, Dorchester.

JAPS HURL HUGE SHELLS UPON CITY OF MUKDEN

Russian General, in Final Effort to Check Envelopment of His Army, Makes Counter-attack on Left Wing of Japanese Force Which Threatens to Cut Off His Retreat.

Special Cable to Boston American.

LONDON, March 6.—Kuropatkin and the Russian army have been driven from Mukden.

The Czar's routed legions are now hurrying toward Tie-Ling in a desperate dash to escape annihilation or surrender, according to reports from the battle-field.

A Mukden dispatch to-day says that Kuropatkin has launched a blow at Oyama's left wing "northwest of the city." St. Petersburg has translated the dispatch to mean an initiative by the Russian leader, but it is regarded here only as further evidence of the desperate fighting forced on Kuropatkin to prevent the complete envelopment of his entire army.

The combined Japanese armies are closing in on the Russian wings and at the same time hammering the Russian centre.

The fate of the Russian left, isolated from the main army three days ago by Kuroki's furious attack, is unknown, but there is little hope for it. The wires are likely to announce at any time the capitulation of the divisions that sought to check the hero of the Yalu.

And then came the greater surprise of all. Nogai, the hero of Port Arthur, with his battle-hardened veterans, joined at the gate of the doomed city from the west with the fanatical forces of demons.

This was a sample of the strategy of the Japanese. Nogai's soldiers were supposed to be attacking the Russian center. But they were shot around the right end of the Russian line by forced marines, with such rapid and accurate fire that the Russian soldiers from the west knew it was Mukden before the Russians knew it.

RUSSIANS IN FLIGHT.

Kuropatkin's only hope now is to save his army from utter rout and capture by a rear guard action. Unless he can repel the tremendous onslaughts by Oyama, his defeat is complete, and a new Sedan will be written on history's page.

"Out of our way—we are from Port Arthur," it is said were the cries of Nogai men as they dashed onward, heedless of the storm of deadly snuff that greeted them.

The Japanese are thus closing in on the beleaguered city from the north and the south flanked with deadly lines of steel. To the southward there is still an opening for Kuropatkin's escape about twenty-five miles.

Japanese dead are piled in heaps in the line of their victorious advance. The carnage on both sides has been terrific. The casualties to date are estimated at over 100,000, the greatest in any battle in the world's history.

HEAVY GUNS SHELL MUKDEN.

RUSSIANS CUT OFF,
A dispatch from New-Chuang says the Japanese on Friday cut off a Russian division, four companies of Cossacks and twenty-six guns, endeavoring to regain Mukden. The Russians were routed and they retreated toward Tie Piao, abandoning their

The Japanese raid on Shumtshin drew reinforcements from the Russian stations on the Mukden trail to the city, which is threatened, and all the outposts had been recalled to strengthen its defence. At 10 o'clock this morning a Russian division of 10,000 men, with Japanese scouts near Laopao, twelve miles from Mukden.

The Russians slowly advanced two miles over a snow-covered plain. They then encountered an increasing force of Japanese, advancing in the face of a driving east storm.

Kuropatkin Decided.

In this, as it now appears, the Russian general was greatly deceived. A greater turning movement was under way on his right. It was accomplished by Oku. The right wing of the Russian army did not only defeat him, but the defeated Muscovites were routed.

The Japanese, after the battle, were discharging sharpshooters at the Russians, who becoming demoralized, were ordered to retreat to the Pansu.

The Russian retreat, which began at 5 o'clock in the afternoon, developed into a rout. The Japanese were not in a sufficiently good field to envelop the Russians, and a Russian force of 10,000 men was able to escape.

The Russians, it is reported, lost five

CLEVELAND, O., March 6.—Cassie T. Chadwick was arraigned for trial this morning before Judge Taylor in the United States District Court. Andrew Carnegie was in court.

The charge against her was a violation of the national banking law, by which she is indicted covering certain transactions, which she is charged to have committed in the name of the Carnegie National Bank of Cleveland, Ohio.

There are eleven counts in the indictment. They relate to eight checks amounting to $100,000, which she is charged to have cashed at the Carnegie National Bank of Cleveland, Ohio, and to have obtained money on worthless checks.

There are seven federal indictments against her, which were returned by the grand jury of the United States District Court for the Northern District of Ohio, at Cleveland, Ohio, on March 1, 1905.

She was arraigned by a rich costume, which was the most noticeable feature of which was a black velvet jacket, lined with white satin, and with white applique. Her hair was bound and cut in a short, wavy style.

SAY MALDEN POLICEMAN WAS VICTIM OF MISTAKE

Brother Patrolmen Do Not Be Hive Follup Was Guilty of Charge Made Against Him.

Suspected upon a grave charge made against him by a young colored woman, Charles A. Follup, a member of the Malden police force, walked to a secluded spot in the back of the Malden police station, and ended his life with a bullet.

The Malden police, shocked by the tragedy, are investigating the story that led up to it. The friends of the dead man are saying that he was the victim of a mistake, and that the charge against him was more than he could stand.

Mr. Follup, who has been an invalid for some time, is in a precarious condition. He was taken to a hospital, but the shock of the charge against him, and the death of his wife, have done much to weaken him.

The friends of the dead man are saying that he was the victim of a mistake, and that the charge against him was more than he could stand.

FEAR BALKAN PROBLEM

ST. PETERSBURG, March 6.—Russia and Austria are endeavoring to reach a settlement of the Balkan problem, which, if it is successful, will permit the Turkish empire to be reconstituted in the Balkans, and will also permit the situation in the Balkans will bring about a general peace in the Balkans.

A person who has intimate knowledge of the various phases of the situation, and who has been in contact with the Russian and Austrian governments, has written a book which contains a full and complete account of the situation in the Balkans, and of the plans of Russia and Austria to reach a settlement of the Balkan problem.

The book is a very interesting and valuable work, and is well worth reading. It contains a full and complete account of the situation in the Balkans, and of the plans of Russia and Austria to reach a settlement of the Balkan problem.

BOSTON WOMEN SUSPECTED IN $5,200 ROBBERY

Detectives Believe Fake Package Was Substituted in This City.

Police and private detectives working on the $5,200 robbery case have concluded that the Boston women who were suspected in the robbery were the ones who substituted the fake package in the city.

The police are now working on the case, and are trying to find out who the women are, and what they did with the money.

Mrs. Chadwick Is Hopeful; Glad Carnegie Is to Be at the Trial

BY CASSIE L. CHADWICK.

I am worried, but not in the sense you would imagine. This is a big event for me and, naturally, I am concerned and anxious, not that I will not be able to face the trial, but more because it is a great step in my life.

I am nervous, but that is not owing to the trial itself, but on account of the large number of people, who will be looking at me. That worries me.

I can hardly stand it.

They will say bad things about me, but I will not hear them. I will not be able to hear anything that is going on. You know I am hard of hearing.

Mr. Carnegie's presence in the city is very good news to me. The probabilities are that I will not go on the stand in my own defense.
